

BATTLE OF MASAGA.

Frutless Victory of the Nicaraguan Revolutionists.

THEY HAVE NOT THE MEANS TO FOLLOW UP THEIR TRIUMPH.

President Saca's Forces Are Far Better Armed and Equipped Than the Insurgents—Spills in the German Centrist Party—The French in Siam—Foreign News.

SAN JOAN DEL SUR, May 25.—Notwithstanding the victories won at Masaga by the revolutionists, their situation is practically unchanged. They have not sufficient arms with which to fight and are not able to take advantage of the demoralization they have caused by assuming the offensive and attacking the capital at Managua. They have plenty of men and money is pouring in by voluntary contribution. The Government is compelled to raise funds on forced loans, but its forces are very well armed.

The revolution appears to have not the slightest effect on this port and rivers. There is not the slightest disturbance here. In fact it is even quieter than in times of peace. A decree has been issued by the Government ordering the port closed, but it has no means to enforce the decree. However, no steamers are calling here. The accident of the lake steamer Marie was a serious blow to the revolutionists, because they are not able to get munitions.

Additional details of the battle of Barranca Pass, near Masaga, show that Saca's losses were 16 killed and 367 wounded. The five Krupp guns which formed the Government batteries did little effective work against the revolutionary army. The revolutionists' artillery was commanded by a French expert. From a hill the Government pieces were trained upon the insurgents, but their aim was imperfect, and the death list of the revolutionists is not nearly so great as that of the Government army. Thirteen hundred Government troops attempted to fight their way out to the position held by the insurgents, who numbered a little more than 1,000, but they were repulsed with heavy losses. The revolutionists held so strong a position in the mountain pass that a much larger attacking force would have been required to dislodge them, even if they had not been backed by artillery.

THE REBELS WILL WIN.
New York, May 25.—"The insurgents will win at all points," said Juan J. Zarza, son of one of the Nicaraguan revolutionary leaders, who is still in New York. "They are fighting for a principle, while Saca's followers are paid mercenaries. I have no apprehension as to the outcome. Saca has put the country under martial law and has declared himself a dictator. That was upward of a week ago. For two weeks he has been successful around Masaga. Why has he not forced a fight? He must have known that every day's delay only helped the revolutionists to get better equipped. He lost, and when the final struggle comes you will see that this is so."

"What credence do you put in the report that President Barrios of Guatemala has signed his will?" asked Zarza. "None whatever. Guatemala has all she can attend to at home. She is not part of her President would only start Guatemala in a revolution of her own. I look for no outside interference from any Central American Republic. Costa Rica is having an election and that keeps her attention strictly to her own affairs, and Honduras has some trouble of her own on hand."

Masaga, the city where the recent battle was fought, lies about half way between Managua, the capital, and Granada, the home of the revolutionists. It is a population of 16,000, a majority of whom are Indians. It lies at the foot of a mountain and is held by revolutionists. The Government forces have been encamped at Barranca, a few miles distant.

GERMAN POLITICS.

SECESSION FROM THE CENTRISTS TO SUPPORT

BREITEN, May 25.—Freiherr von Schorlemer-Alst, the Centrist leader, who withdrew from the meeting of the Westphalian Centrists at Munster because the majority refused to support a resolution in favor of the army bill, has joined with other landholders hitherto attached to the Center party in publishing a separate address to the electorate in which they demand a strong army to defend the fatherland. Schorlemer-Alst and those who join with him will nominate candidates in opposition to the candidates nominated by the Center party.

A TIME OF UNREST.

BREITEN, May 25.—A few days ago the pupils of the High School at Breiten, in the state of Prussia, refused to attend school for the purpose of paying their respects to Prince Bismarck. The aged ex-Chancellor was greatly complimented by the thoughtfulness of the students and he received them very graciously. In the course of his remarks the Prince said: "It is a great blessing that we owe to God that our whole nation is now more united together than for a long time before. We are living in a time full of calm. Any more war would be a disaster. We hope that science, commerce and labor will flourish, for the shedding of blood is a thankless business."

FRENCH AND SIAM.

PARIS, May 25.—The French public is chagrined and annoyed by the meagerness of the official news regarding the troubles between the French and Siamese in Mekong Valley. The details of the attack upon the French Annamite garrison at Klong are still wanting, and the official news is not so convincing as the reports of the Siamese. The French authorities are still in the hands of the Siamese, and the French government appears to be in a position of weakness. The French government appears to be in a position of weakness. The French government appears to be in a position of weakness.

INJURY TO GLADSTONE'S EYE.

LONDON, May 25.—Mr. Gladstone has consulted with the oculist at Chester who attended him last June when one of his eyes was injured by a missile thrown at him by some one in the crowd, while he was attending a political meeting at that place. It is reported that the mark of the injury has entirely disappeared and that no defect in the eyesight has resulted from the blow. The oculist, however, cautioned Mr. Gladstone that special precautions were still necessary.

SITUATION IN THE FAMINE.

SIMLA, May 25.—An Englishman who has just arrived here from the Panjabs says that the Russians had prepared for the arrival of 1,000 troops at the Murghab fort. He believes that the men are at the fort by this time, and that notwithstanding pacific assurances more Russian troops will be moved through the Oxus Valley during the coming summer.

AUSTRALIA'S FINANCIAL CRISIS.

MELBOURNE, May 25.—The Premiers of Victoria, New South Wales and South Australia will confer in this city on May 27 as to a plan of joint action to combat the financial crisis. In the assembly of Victoria the banking bill for the relief of the present tension has passed its second reading.

THE IRON MARKET.

Business Moving Steadily, but Much Caution Manifested.

CLEVELAND, O., May 25.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: Conservatism leaning to caution, but not to the point of timidity, characterizes the iron market. Business goes steadily on, in spite of untoward developments in the East that have compelled banks all over the country to shorten their lines of discounts sharply and to stop making new loans; but there is a deal of waiting for prospectors of new enterprises. Consequently expectations have not been met in the finished material trade and mill products will not move out into consumption as yet. Pennsylvania holders are disposed to ask from $2 to 25 cents more for standard iron.

HIDING IN MEXICO.

Hillman Said to Be Concealed in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

ALLIED CHIEF CONSPIRATOR IN THE KANSAS INSURANCE SWINDLE.

His Friends Claim That He Was Killed Fifteen Years Ago, But the Life Insurance Companies Say He Is a Murderer Who Is Trying to Defraud Them of $25,000.

NEW YORK, May 25.—There is printed here this morning a story from Topeka, Kan., telling of the wanderings and present location of John W. Hillman, the notorious Kansas insurance swindler, upon whose life a claim for $25,000 against the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of this city has been in the courts for years.

Mr. Wm. G. Davis, Solicitor-General of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., was seen by a reporter and said: "Hillman's hiding place in the Sierra Madre Mountains in Mexico is his prison and will be until the case is settled of the Kansas authorities act. We have known of this for some time through our attorneys in Kansas. All the facts which fasten upon Hillman the crime of murder have been gathered and given to the Kansas authorities."

"You intend to cause Hillman's arrest very soon?" asked the reporter.

"That I cannot say," replied he. "If Hillman's widow attempts to push the case to trial again we shall certainly cause his arrest and by our array of facts settle the matter forever. But we have been put to great expense by the litigation and the search for Hillman, which has been going on for years, and we do not care to waste any more money unless these people have not had enough of the law. They may insist on another trial, but I do not think they will. The decision of the United States court, which allowed the admission as to the evidence concerning Walter, the man Hillman murdered, practically destroyed the case of the plaintiff. If the case is not tried again then it will be the duty of the authorities of Kansas to cause Hillman's arrest and trial. It will be no concern of ours."

This is the tenth time that Hillman has been turned up, according to the agents of the insurance companies interested, and each time prior to the present instance the great conspirator has faded out of sight. But now the companies claim to know for a certainty that the man is alive.

Nothing Gaboriau ever wrote rivaled in weird interest the story of "Wes" Hillman's famous insurance conspiracy, as insurance men call it. Hillman was born in Indiana in 1846, and was about 34 years old at the time he was reported to have been killed accidentally near Medicine Lodge, Kan., in 1879.

At that time he was insured for $25,000 in the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York and the Connecticut Mutual Life. Four months later he started for the plains for a while in a "prairie schooner," ostensibly to establish a ranch. A few weeks later he returned to Lawrence, Kan., and paid up another $25,000 premium on his policy and took out $5,000 more in the New York Life. He had never been vaccinated, and until that had been done the New York Life would not issue a policy. He was vaccinated, and after a fortnight again started out on his trip, accompanied by his partner in the cattle-driving business, John H. Brown, and a young man of the name of Walters, a cigar-maker, whom he had hired to go on a ranch.

A few weeks later Brown returned and told a story which was the effect that the cattle near Medicine Lodge had been accidentally shot Hillman through the head and killed him and had buried him. Then it was that Hillman's friends and neighbors at Lawrence first learned of his having his life heavily insured.

Levi Baldwin, a cousin of Hillman's wife and a friend of the alleged dead man, came forward with the policies which he claimed to have taken out. As Baldwin was a bankrupt at the time the matter was taken up with suspicion. The authorities decided to hunt up the body to see that no swindle had been perpetrated. The body was taken to Lawrence.

The first sensation after that was in the disappearance of Brown, who ran away. The next was the appearance of mother, brother, sister and several other young Walters, all of whom positively identified the body as that of Walters. Walters was 21 years old, dark complexion and 5 feet 2 inches in height and with sound teeth. Hillman was 5 feet 8 inches in height, 34 years old and with irregular teeth. Hillman's wife identified the body as that of her husband by a scar from the vaccination which had been performed a few weeks prior to his death. Physicians claimed that the scar on the dead man's arm was the result of vaccination made less than two weeks before death. The face and hair of the dead man had been burned beyond recognition.

Then began the bitter legal fight which has not yet ended. Brown got scared and wrote to the insurance people from Missouri that for $2,000 he would tell the whole story. They insisted on the body from him, and the effect that the whole matter had been planned months before. Hillman's first start toward the West had been made in the expectation of finding a corpse on the plains on the trail of some of the long immigrant trains, a result of exposure to the "northern" or from other cause—a not infrequent occurrence at that time in that locality. He failed and returned to Lawrence to get a corpse. He hired Walters, a young man much larger than himself, and men in the same line of work received. He insisted on Walters being vaccinated, telling him that unless he was he ran great risk among the Indians, where small pox was prevalent. Walters refused to be vaccinated and Hillman vaccinated the young man from the virus of his own arm with the point of his knife.

Two trials were had at Leavenworth before Judge David J. Brewer in the United States Circuit Court, and in both cases the jury failed to agree. In the meantime Baldwin, Hillman's cousin, ran away, and Mrs. Baldwin, according to statements made by the insurance companies, got frightened and agreed to surrender the policies which were made for the policies and the cooperation of verbal ones, and her lawyers persuaded her that it was not valid, and again she went on with her suit, which she won.

New evidence was discovered tending to show that Hillman was alive and in Texas. Dr. Phillips testified under oath that in 1878 Levi Baldwin had said to him:

"Doc, wouldn't it be a good scheme to get your life insured for all you could and then get some one to represent you as dead and skip out for some safe place? It could be done like a top."

It was only a short time after this that Baldwin and Hillman took out the insurance policies.

So the case was carried up to the United States Supreme Court, where it is now pending. The insurance companies and the authorities have gone with a drag-net over the West for Hillman, and though they claim to have found many traces of him, he was never caught. The authorities want him for the murder of Frederick Adolph Walters, the young cigar-maker, whom Brown in this first affidavit called Joe Berkley. This misstatement, and the fact that on a later trial Brown made an affidavit in which he said his first statement was untrue, has eliminated his evidence from the case, and so far as the insurance companies are concerned the case now hinges on the positive identification which they claim to have made of the corpse as that of Walters and not of Hillman.

The case is given peculiar interest just now in view of the fact that it is used by Supl. Snyder, of the insurance Department of Kansas, as a justification of his order to the effect that insurance litigation must hereafter be conducted in the Kansas state courts by foreign corporations doing business there. Mr. Snyder pointed to the Hillman case as an instance where the widow was kept out of her money by long-drawn-out contests in the Federal courts.

TO RAISE SUNKEN SHIPS.

Novel Plan Proposed by a New York Company Just Incorporated.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Articles of incorporation of the M. Cavanaugh Wrecking Co. have been filed in the office of the Secretary of State, Trenton, N. J. The capital stock of the company is $2,500,000. The incorporators are John James and Joseph Grant of Tacoma, Wash., and J. Herbert Potts of New York.

The company will engage in the business of raising sunken vessels by a novel method. Large rubber bags will be placed in the hold of a sunken vessel by divers. The bags are to be connected by hose with air pumps on floats on the surface and the air will be pumped into them. As the bags expand, they expected that they will expel nearly all the water from the hold and give the sunken vessel sufficient buoyancy to cause it to rise to the surface. Mr. Potts says the company's first experiment will be made on the Oregon, which is sunk off Fire Island.
